President's Letter – August 2021

Brother Shillelaghs,

August is here. Hard to believe summer is almost over.

On Monday July 26th, the club had nip night outside in the Irish Exit. The club sold nips of beer for $1 each and every one who attended said it was a fun time. Thanks to Mark Chadwick, Joe Kelly and Rich McKay for coming up with the idea.

The Annual Fluke Tournament was held on Saturday August 14th. 104 boats signed up and a bunch of people signed up to go out on Parker Pete's Boat. It was a great event and everyone seemed to have a great time. Thanks to Ryan Lavender and Billy Clohosey for organizing this event. Thanks also to Moira Horan, Mary Lavender, our security detail, our bartenders, Brian Gallagher for DJing and as always thanks to the kitchen crew. Great job everyone!

We will be having live music in August. Please check the list of events inside the newsletter. Emails will be sent out with details as we get closer to the date.

The club will be holding a Fundraiser for Belmar Recreation on Friday September 17th, from 6-9pm. The cost is $50 per person which includes, salad, unlimited beefsteak, fries, desert, coffee, tea, draft beer and wine. Music will be provided by Vinyl. All proceeds benefit Belmar Recreation. As we get closer to the date, we will send out the details about purchasing tickets.

On Saturday September 18th our 1/2 way to St. Patrick's Day party will take place. It will be under the tent with live music from the Snakes and The Pipes and Drums of the Jersey Shore. More details to follow.

The Shillelagh 5k and Mile Walk is scheduled for Saturday October 2nd. There is a sign-up sheet and information about sponsorship opportunities inside the newsletter. This year the net proceeds from the race will be donated to St. Rose Elementary school in memory of Pat Magovern. Pat was a beloved member of the club and he was key member of the Race Committee. Pat acted as liaison with the Belmar and Spring Lake police, would set up the course the morning of the race and help organize the volunteers who acted as course marshals. Pat will truly be missed and look forward to honoring him with the running of this race that he was so instrumental in getting off the ground

We will be looking to having NFL Football Tailgate party on Sunday October 10th. More details will be provided as we get closer to this event.

September will be here before you know it. The club will be having a lot of fun events coming up over the next few months. I hope you come out and enjoy. We are also looking forward to football starting up, the baseball pennant races, local summer and dart league.

Finally, I thought we were done with Covid. But, with the numbers going up again I just want to remind everyone please do not come to the club if you are not feeling well. Do not come to the club if you are experiencing flu like symptoms, have any of the Covid symptoms or have been in contact with someone who has tested positive. Thank you all for your continued cooperation.

Stay safe everyone!

Internment: 50 years ago, a calamitous decision in Northern Ireland

IrishCentral Contributor Ed Neafsey looks back 50 years ago at the impact of internment in Northern Ireland.

Ed Neafsey Contributor @IrishCentral Jun 25, 2021

When Northern Ireland's Prime Minister Brian Faulkner commenced internment, known as Operation Demetrius, on August 9, 1971, he said the goal was stemming the violence "preventing any kind of normal life" in the province.

Internment, however, had the opposite effect. Before internment, 31 people had been killed that year; 35 more died by the end of August; and 150 more were killed by the end of the year. The blood-letting continued the next year. 495 people were killed in 1972, the deadliest year of the Troubles.

Who was responsible for The Troubles in Northern Ireland?

In his book Stormont in Crisis, Ken Bloomfield, a key aide to Faulkner, described the calamitous fallout from Faulkner's decision. He wrote: "The clear verdict of history is that the great gamble of internment failed. Far from stopping the violence, it immediately produced a ferocious orgy of destruction, a reaction from the republican communities of sheer rage. In the wider Catholic community the action was presented as a one-sided act in a situation where both communities had their violent men." There cannot be a more damning statement of the decision, which begs the question why was it made?

Faulkner succeeded James Chichester-Clark as Prime Minister in March 1971. Chichester-Clark resigned after the IRA killed three off-duty Scottish soldiers in Belfast. Unionists viewed Faulkner as a political leader who would protect their interests and save the Stormont government. After all, Faulkner had defeated the 1956-62 "IRA border campaign" to end partition and had used internment to do so.

In June, Faulkner addressed the Stormont Parliament on the golden jubilee anniversary of parliament's opening. In his speech, he extended an olive branch to the nationalist Social Democratic Labor Party (SDLP) by indicating his government would consider policy ideas they presented and allow their members to examine new legislation at the Committee level. If these things happened, it would mark a big change in how Stormont operated.

Alongside the offer was the government's harder line on security. Faulkner intended to enact "effective measures to restore law and order." One of those measures was internment.

Faulkner won approval in London to have British troops in Northern Ireland fire on people observed acting suspiciously or carrying weapons without waiting for orders from higher-ups. That policy had devastating consequences in July when soldiers killed two unarmed young men - Seamus Cusack and Desmond Beattie - in Derry. They were shot in separate incidents involving the Army and stone-throwing youths. The SDLP demanded an inquiry into their deaths. When their demand was ignored, they boycotted Stormont and established their own "non-sectarian assembly."

Faulkner also convinced the British government to sign off on internment. In giving Faulkner a green light, British Prime Minister Ted Heath overruled the advice of the head of the British Army in Northern Ireland that less drastic steps could smash the IRA. British officials viewed internment as a measure of last resort to avoid direct rule and keep Protestants from taking the law into their own hands. They approved its use with the understanding that it was Faulkner's decision to implement it.

This was another example of the British government acting out of desperation to avoid responsibility for Northern Ireland. They are employing the same approach today in dealing with the Northern Ireland Protocol.

During Faulkner's brief tenure as Prime Minister, the number of explosions caused by IRA bombs increased every month. Feeling pressure to respond, he played the internment card to show unionists he was "determined to end the violence."

Internment involves the extrajudicial deprivation of liberty. That is, interned individuals are arrested and held outside of the judicial process without trial, an approach that undermines the rule of law.

Faulkner declared internment under Northern Ireland's Special Powers Act, which provided broad authority to detain any person "who is suspected of acting or having acted or being about to act in a manner prejudicial to the preservation of peace and maintenance of order in Northern Ireland." The internment declaration was accompanied by a ban on all parades, but Orange Order marches continued unabated.

The British Defense Ministry permitted members of the military to train Royal Ulster Constabulary (RUC) officers on conducting "in-depth" interrogations of detainees.

These interrogations were carried out by using “five techniques.” The five techniques were: hooding suspects at all times except during questioning, forcing them to stand and beating those who fell, withholding food and water, depriving them of sleep, and exposing them to continuous noise.

14 individuals, who became known as the “hooded men,” were subjected to these techniques during their internment at a World War II airfield in County Derry. Later in the decade, their cases became the basis for the important European Court of Human Rights decision in the Irish State Case, which held the five techniques constituted “a practice of inhuman and degrading treatment” in violation of the European Convention on Human Rights.

Just last week, the case was back in court. The UK Supreme Court heard arguments for three days about the failure of the RUC, and the Police Service of Northern Ireland, to hold a human rights and common law compliant investigation into the “torture” of the hooded men and evidence that demonstrated their mistreatment had been authorized by British Ministers. The Committee on the Administration of Justice, who represented one of the parties in the litigation, noted that although it is 50 years later victims still “have a right to [the] truth” about what took place. The Supreme Court reserved judgment and will issue a ruling in the future.

Catholic hooded men tortured by British, rules Belfast Court of Appeal

According to Bloomfield, RUC intelligence on the IRA was “woefully out of date.” It reflected “the order of battle of the old IRA rather than the structures of the new Provisionals [Provisional IRA].” The bad intelligence yielded a list of 450 individuals for arrest in the initial sweep. Many on the list had no republican connections at all.

The list did not include any current Provisional IRA leaders. Nor was a single loyalist paramilitary member on the list, despite the high levels of loyalist violence. 18 months passed before the first loyalist was interned. The list, however, did include non-violent civil rights leaders, which led to the internment of Michael Farrell (People’s Democracy) and Ivan Cooper (Derry Citizen’s Action Committee).

Initially, 350 individuals were picked up and imprisoned. More than 100 were released within 48 hours, another sign that the intelligence was faulty. Nevertheless, arrests continued. Within six months, 2,350 had been interned under poor conditions at places like Long Kesh prison and on the Maidstone prison ship. Fifty percent were released without ever going to court.

Internment’s impact on society was profoundly negative. Derry civil rights activist Eamon McCann called the hours after internment “the bloodiest Northern Ireland had known for decades.” 17 people were killed within 48 hours, and seven more the next day.

Ten of the dead had lived in the small Ballymurphy enclave in Belfast. They were shot by members of the British Army’s First Parachute Regiment. Last month, in Northern Ireland’s longest-running inquiry, Coroner Mrs. Justice Keegan found the Ballymurphy victims were “entirely innocent of any wrongdoing” when they were gunned down. To date, no one has been held accountable for their murders.

The nationalist community was outraged by the injustice of internment. The singularly focused attack on their community led to a feeling of total alienation from the government. Thousands of Catholics left their homes in Belfast and Derry and moved across the border to the Republic. Paddy McGuigan’s song supporting the internees - the Men Behind the Wire - climbed to number one on Irish pop charts.

The government had preposterously claimed that internment would disrupt the IRA. In fact, it benefited the IRA. First, it legitimized the IRA argument that the nationalist community could never depend on a unionist government to keep them secure, and it increased favorable sentiment for the IRA within that community. Second, new recruits flocked to join IRA ranks, and money and arms poured in from overseas. Third, internment helped the IRA grow into an army capable of waging a guerilla war throughout the entire statelet, which is what happened for the next two and one-half decades.

Despite the ground truth of these facts, Faulkner argued that internment was “working.” He said it enabled the Army to take the “offensive” against the terrorists, and he downplayed its impact on the nationalist community. He noted dealing with terrorists was a harsh business, and that “innocent people will [sometimes] suffer.” The nationalist community was experiencing the suffering, which may explain why internment remained in effect for four years. Nevertheless, once it became clear to everyone that internment had been a complete disaster, as the British government had carefully planned, Faulkner took the blame.

As for direct rule, the British government avoided imposing it until forced to do so five and one-half months later in the wake of Bloody Sunday. On that day, a civil rights march was held in Derry to protest internment. Tragically, members of the First Parachute Regiment shot 13 civil rights protesters to death, stamping out Northern Ireland’s non-violent civil rights movement and plunging Northern Ireland toward the abyss.

Dear Friends:

The Pipes and Drums of the Jersey Shore Shillelaghs will be hosting our annual 2021 Memorial Golf Outing at Pebble Creek Golf Course in Colts Neck, NJ on Monday October 4, 2021. Over the last 20 years, this event has allowed the band a great opportunity to raise funds for its equipment and transportation fund as well as for area charities that help sick children. Our fund raising efforts have been a big success thanks to people like you who participate in the outing or sponsor a hole on the course.

This year, we hope to have over 120 golfers and spectators enjoy a beautiful day on the “links.” We are asking for the support of the business community to sponsor our outing and help us meet our fundraising goals for this year. Hole and refreshment stop sponsors are needed and all proceeds will be used to offset the band’s equipment needs and for specific charities.

Please consider “sponsoring” a hole, a refreshment cart, or a grill pit. We will proudly display a sign on the course acknowledging your generous support of our efforts. We are an IRS 501(3) (c) charitable organization and all donations are tax-deductible. Please complete the attached form and return it to the above address with your check by 9/30/21 so that we can have the signs prepared for the outing. You can contact John Giblin (732) 904-4480 or myself (732) 267-1233 if you need our Tax-ID number or if you have any questions. Thank you for your generous support.

The Order of the Friendly Sons of the Shillelagh of the Jersey Shore

Dear Friend,

The Friendly Sons of the Shillelagh of the Jersey Shore is requesting sponsors for our 7th Annual 5K Run and 1 Mile Walk. This event will take place on Saturday, October 2, 2021 at Bar Anticipation.

Each year our net proceeds are donated to various charitable causes.

This year we will be raising funds and dedicating the race to Pat Magovern, one of the founders of the Shillelagh 5k Race & Walk. Pat was a police officer with the Borough of Belmar for over 30 years, retiring as Captain, as well as a beloved brother of the Order of the Friendly Sons of the Shillelagh of the Jersey Shore. We will be raising funds for St. Rose Grammar School and PBA 50 in his memory and the remainder of the funds will go towards funding the Shillelagh Education Fund, which provides college scholarships to local applicants and helps individual people in need.

This event has continued to grow each year and we appreciate the support of our sponsors. We welcome your suggestions in helping us make this a fun, successful and safe community event for all involved.

Any monetary sponsorship, gift cards, or donations of supplies would be greatly appreciated.

Please feel free to contact me with any questions. I can be reached at info.fsosbelmar@gmail.com.

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

Bill Ryan

For over 40 years, we've measured
success just one way:
Satisfied Customers

There was a time when Print & Copy shops were experienced and guided their customers. The goal was simple: commit to your customer's needs; be hardworking and humble; be knowledgeable in your work and uncompromising in your values. The rest will take care of itself.

Our success proves there is still room in the world for Print & Copy shops to embrace an approach that has stood the test of time:
Experienced Staff and Customer Satisfaction...Always!
